Weird Little Finds

1 Bakery string makes a great bracelet or a cute cord to dangle pendants from. It's free with any purchase (say, cannoli), so it has practically the same charm as something stolen. 2 A cutting-edge art scene is always the first symptom of a neighborhood becoming fatally hip. Like Silver Lake in L.A., which, thanks to low rents and rock star residents, is putting out some of the best stuff (www.ghettogloss.com).

3 Cycling shirts are a cheap and fast way to catapult your fashion status to finger-on-the-pulse-ville (www.electrabike.com or www.nike.com). 4 A Romanian engineer claims he has invented a bracelet that measures true love. It really gauges your heart rate. If it goes up when you see the victim in question, you know your love is true. Sad. 5 If the spring fashion shows are any sign, rockabilly is going to be hot. Don't be a poseur—visit the source (www.daddyos.com).
